A History of Modern Psychology by Duane P. Schultz

While many consider the 17th and 18th centuries the birth of modern psychology (largely characterized by the publication of William Battle's "Treatise on Madness" in 1758), it was not until 1840 that psychology was established as a field of science independent of psychiatry. It was in that year that the first book on the subject, "Psychology, or a View of Human Soul, including Anthropology," was published by American educator Frederick Augustus Rauch.
